BIG GAME QUEST

MILLIONAIRE'S NEW CRAZE.

A photographic expedition, armed with balloons, kites, and flashlights, is following in the footsteps of Mr. Roosevelt in Uganda, to "pot" lions and lionesses, rhinoceroses, and hippopotamuses with the camera.

Mr. D. Boyce, the millionaire owner of the Chicago Ledger and the Chicago Saturday Blade is responsible for this most remarkable expedition. His aim is to enter the wildest parts of Africa, not to shoot wild beasts but to snapshoot them.

He makes no secret of his reasons for going. He wanted an original idea, as he put it, for the Chicago Saturday Blade, and he is going to spend $100,000 in carrying out his project of photographing wild beasts in their lairs from captive balloons and box kites.

There is one man famous all the States over for his wonderful photographs. He is the pioneer balloon photographer, and his name is George R. Lawrence. Mr. W. D. Boyce showed an Express representative some of his photographs—marvellous pictures of the ruins of San Francisco, football matches and crowds. They were taken at very high altitude by a special camera, and every detail is perfect.

"I have hired Lawrence for a year," Mr. W. D. Boyce said, "and I am paying him $100 a day. We have already shipped ten tons of sulphuric acid and ten tons of steel filings to Nairobi," he added, "to make our own hydrogen for balloons. If all has gone as expected the expedition will be at Mombasa, where white guides take charge of the party. Mr. Judd the guide is getting the Safari together. We shall have 400 porters; each white man wants thirty porters, and there are seven of us, and then we have our balloons and appliances.

EQUIPMENT

The equipment of the party includes:

- 3 balloons.
- 28 cameras.
- Cinematograph.
- 10,000 feet of film.
- 6000 plates and films.
- Electrical plant.
- A whole shop of chemicals.
- 600 flashlight cartridges.
- 40 box kites.
- 100 high-wind kites.

The cameras measure from 3½ in. by 5½ in. to 22 in. by 55 in. The balloons and kites are on their way from America. There is an entire cinematograph apparatus, with screens for projections.

"It's an idea of mine to keep the natives quiet. I shall give them free cinematograph shows in the jungle," Mr. Boyce said. "I have also a dozen or so snapshots, with the latest records. We shall give them Tetrazini or Carum after a hard day's work. Remember there are 400 natives to be kept in order.

BATTERY OF CAMERAS

"The box kites are for photography when the wind is too high for ballooning. From ten to twenty of them will support one of the large cameras."

The greatest feature of the expedition is the battery of cameras. They are automatic instantaneous cameras, for flashlight purposes. Mr. Boyce explained how they will work.

"We shall place the carcasses of some animal as a bait for the prowling lions. Round the carcass will be six of our great cameras, and close at hand will be a microphone transmitter, connected with a cable.

"Where shall we be? Two miles away at the end of the cable, you bet, with receivers over our heads, listening. If there are lions about we shall hear them roaring and fighting over the carcass.

"That will be our time. We press a button, and two miles away the flashlights flash, one after another, and the shutters click.

"We ought to get some startled expressions on those lions' faces. There's no danger to them, but six flashlights are enough to scare the life out of any able-bodied lion, in the darkness of the jungle. We tried it on dogs in America, and got some fine pictures.

The expedition is being organized in London, and Mr. Boyce is being assisted by Mr. McMillan of the Wells Fargo Company.

Local and General.

Miss Mary Lee will open up a dressmaker's shop in the building next door to the telephone office and will be prepared to do all kinds of dressmaking and childrens sewing.

Harry Mann, of the Arcade Pool Room, has got his two new tables from Vancouver and has them set up and in order now. He appears to be certain to receive liberal patronage.

Parties wishing to obtain copies of grain and other produce laws can receive them by addressing a post card to David Horn, Chief Grain Inspector, Winnipeg.

Thos. Fitzgerald.

Geo. Becker has just received the agency for the Imperial Oil Co. and has a car of oil, gasoline, etc., on the road from Winnipeg. Those wishing quotations on oils, etc., should see Mr. Becker.

Geo. Stratton has taken the rooms over MacCrimmon's butcher shop for use in connection with the hotel. Additional accommodation is necessary as the present rooms are filled all the time and people having to be turned away.

H. W. Currie, of Strathcona, will take over Walter Bradley's blacksmith shop on Monday next. Mr. Currie, who will have an assistant who is an expert horsehoof, comes highly recommended as a skillful workman. We welcome him to town.

Messrs. Robertson and R. J. Stead, of Cartwright, Manitoba, passed through town on Monday on an automobile on their way to Red Deer. The latter gentleman is editor of the Southern Manitoba Review. Mr. Robertson is on the lookout for a good location for a lumber yard.

As showing the extent of the business done here we may mention that Jas. A. Sutherland had a freight bill amounting to $582.10 to pay one day this week on four cars of material which he got in. One day last week the same gentleman had over $400 to pay for freight.

Mrs. Jas. McLaren and Miss McLaren were visitors to Crossfield for a few days last week. They returned to Calgary on Monday.

W. E. Chadsey, provincial superintendent of the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation, of London, Eng., was in town on Tuesday and appointed Messrs. Hultgren & Davie to represent the company here.

Mr. Taylor who has been conducting the Presbyterian Church services in town for six months past is taking the services for the last time on Sunday. He will leave the following week for Vancouver and will be followed by the good wishes of the members of his congregation and the townspeople generally. Mr. Menzies, of Bellshill, Alta., will take the services here and Airdrie for the winter.

AND HE IS RIGHT.

"I would rather fill my purse with money and keep its gates ajar to my happy girls while they yet linger under my roof than to clutch it with a miser's hand until the harp strings of youth are broken and its music forever fled. I would rather spend my last nickel for striped marbles to gladden the hearts of my barefoot boys than to deny them their childish pleasures and leave them a bag of gold to quarrel over when I am dead. I abhor the pitiless hawk that circles the air only to swoop down and strangle the song of the linnet or bury its talons in the heart of a dove. I despise the soulless man whose greed for gold impels him to strangle the laughter and song of his own family."—Senator Bob Taylor of Tennessee.

Horticulturists of Quincy, Illinois, are said to be much excited by a new berry, a cross between the strawberry and the raspberry, which possesses a more delicate flavour than either the strawberry or the raspberry. The new berry grows on a bush three feet high from a stock covered with thorns like those of the raspberry.

SOLVES FERMAT THEOREM.

Woman May Get $25,000 Prize Offered in German Professor's Will.

A woman who has been a mathematician for a decade in New York city is believed to have worked out the famous Fermat theorem which has remained undemonstrated for almost 250 years. As a consequence she is likely to receive the money reward offered by the will of a professor in Darmstadt University, but the Academy of Sciences of Göttingen is permitted, by the terms of the bequest, to hold back the prize for two years, and the course of which period of time the New York teacher's demonstration will be passed upon by the leading mathematicians of the world.

This is the theorem: The sum of the nth powers of two positive integers cannot be an nth power for any value of n except 2.

In the demonstration made by the woman, who prefers to remain incognito until Göttingen has crowned her work, every letter employed represents a positive integer. Her proof, in the printed form required by the conditions attached to the contest, covers eight pages and has satisfied Professor McMahon of Cornell University, Professor Moore of Chicago university and Professor Schwartz of Berlin, that it embraces at least the most important of the almost innumerable forms into which the argument may fall.

For years mathematicians in all countries have labored at it. The difficulty, expressed crudely, is that it embodies in one step an indefinitely large number of syllogisms. To discern in regular progressions and not to leap irregularly over several integers, to compass, in a word, the vague possibilities of numbers and their relations and properties, has fascinated mathematical students everywhere.

But in the opinion of the teachers, among them the greatest of our mathematicians the greater Fermat theorem has been proved by an American woman. These gentlemen have indorsed her demonstration, and five copies have recently been received by the academy at Göttingen. She was occupied the better part of a year in preparing this proof, which, it is expected, will bear off the prize. Two years must elapse, however, before the result is positively known, in her case as in that of any contestant. She was born and educated in New England, but took her matriculation degree from Cornell. Her work as a teacher has been done in Brooklyn and New York.—New York Post.

Narrow Neckwear for Men.
Shops which cater to the better class of trade are showing the most conservative colors in neckwear. There is a demand for greens in bows and four-in-hands, although this demand has been by no means considerable. Knit scarfs, also woven scarfs of satin, twill, and other weaves in reversibles from one to one and a half inches wide are somewhat in vogue for strictly summer wear. All-knit neckwear, it is apparent, is having a better run in the west than in the east. Washable goods are scarce, some in solid colors, white especially. Graduated ties are coming into favor again, and batwing, too. The present almost universal demand for close-fitting collars is bringing narrow neckwear more to the front than was earlier expected. The narrowest are one inch wide and from this size the narrow range to one and a half inches. The demand for these goods, it would appear, is confined to striped and plain colors. The best dressed, however, continue to wear the broader shapes. Narrow open-ended scarves, straight one-inchers, especially reversible, are in demand.

Taxless Towns.

No fewer than 1,524 towns and villages in Germany still own, and have owned, down from the middle ages, as much common land that their inhabitants pay neither rates nor taxes. Five hundred of these townships and villages derive so great a rental from their lands that they are able, instead, to pay every citizen on New Year's day, a bonus of from $25 to $100 as his share of the surplus revenue.

Agreed With the Court

A lawyer came into court drunk, when the judge said to him:

"Sir, I am sorry to see you in a situation which is a disgrace to yourself and family and the profession to which you belong."

This remark elicited the following colloquy:

"Did your honor speak to me?"

"I did sir, I said, sir, that in my opinion you disgraced yourself and the court, and the profession by your course of conduct."

"May I—I—please your honor. I have been attorney-in—

—in—out in the court for fifteen years, and permit me to say your honor, that this is the first correct opinion I ever knew you to give."

"Hollo, Mr. Lovejoy!" exclaimed a gentleman of that lady's acquaintance, "pray what brings you out so early in the day?"

"Oh, I've just been to the photographer's with my pet dog, Dido" (which she carried in her arms), "and we have had our portraits taken together, haven't we, Dido? Beauty and the beast, you know, Mr. Johnson—with a sauce a little."

"And what a little beauty he is, to be sure!" replied Johnson indignantly, as he tenderly stroked poor Dido's head and pulled his ears. And then he suddenly remembered, "and what a little beast he is, to be sure!"

"I see you are cultivating a garden." "Yes," answered Mr. Crosslot. "I profit from it. You derive both pleasure and profit from it. Not exactly. But it leaves me more contented. It makes the cost of vegetables in the market seem small by comparison."

Regarded as one of the most potent compounds ever introduced with which to combat all summer complaints and inflammation of the bowels, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial has won for itself a reputation that no other cordial of the purpose can aspire to. For young or old suffering from these complaints it is the best medicine that can be procured.

"Well, and how did you sleep last night? Did you follow my advice and begin counting?" "Yes, I counted up to 15,000,000." "And then you fell asleep?" "No; then it was time to get up."

ROSY-CHEEKED BABIES

Nothing in the world is such a comfort and joy as a healthy, rosy-cheeked, happy baby. But the price of Baby's health is constant vigilance on the part of the mother. The ill of babyhood come suddenly and the wise mother will always be in a position to combat them at once.

No other medicine can take the place of Baby's Own Tablets in relieving and curing the ill of babyhood and childhood, and there is no other medicine as safe.

Mrs. Wm. Viggers, Portreton, Ont., says: "My baby was troubled with his stomach, and was very cross while getting his teeth, and did not sleep well at night. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets with the best results. He is now one of the best natured babies one could wish." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Their Fortunate Escape.
They had walked halfway through the park at night, and as they sank on a shaded bench. He seated himself beside her. They were entirely alone save for an old man at one end of the illuminated in the gallery.

"Oh, it is too dreadful!" she shuddered, covering her face with her hands as if to shut out some unbearable sight.

"Fearful!" he agreed, deeply moved and mopping the profuse perspiration from his forehead.

"Horrible!" she added. "I cannot bear to think of it. The loss of hope, the prospect of a cruel life!"

"Hush!" he interrupted. "Let us strive to think of it no more or it may grow to prey upon our minds."

"Medicine!" said the old man on the end of the bench, his watery eyes distended in lively apprehension. "Has there been some awful disaster? Have you been forced to look upon some awful tragedy?"

The young couple regarded each other in some confusion. Hesitatingly they answered:

"No, sir. You see, we have just become engaged, and we were talking of our elopement. It would have been had we never met."

Her Greenhorn Mother.
"I was going to Patchogue," said a woman at the Waldorf, "when I saw sitting near by a little girl with her mother, the mother evidently a foreigner, the child born in this country, both surrounded by bundles in the foreign way. The child was six. The mother came along, and the child held out the tickets."

"I want you to put us off at Patchogue," she said, smiling at him, and both with our bundles, please me. My mother's a greenhorn. She doesn't know anything about traveling."

"I watched her until the two arrived at the station, and I think I have never seen a more polite little girl or a more seemingly dutiful mother. It was quite evident to my mind that she meant no disrespect to her mother by calling her by what could seem to you to be an opprobrious epithet. She had merely adopted one of our slang words as the very best of English."—New York Press.

A Many-Sided Man.
Sir John Cook, Australia's new Postmaster-General, is a Cornishman by birth, although nearly all of his life has been spent in Australia. He has been many things in his life, including an engineer, a compositor, an engine-driver in a mine, and a reporter.

He then went to Melbourne University, where he took his B.A., and became law reporter on The Age. He was called to the Victorian Bar, represented Sandhurst in the Assembly, and took the degree of LL.D. at Melbourne University. He has practiced as a barrister, and has contributed much to Australian literature.

Postman's Long Service.
An Imperial Service medal has lately been presented to Mr. Joseph Holt, Coventry's (Eng.) oldest postman, for long and faithful service. The recipient served nearly thirty years, and during that time the population of the Warwickshire city has grown from 37,670 to 91,000.

Faithfully Warned.
The meek and lowly drug clerk had just proposed to the fair sobriety with the soda fountain. "Fade away," murmured the fair, "fade away, my dear."

"You love another?" he queried. "I love you, my dear."

"Oh, nothing," he said. "But you are making the mistake of your life in turning me down and allowing them to fool you with something just as good."

An Arbitrary Classification.
"So you think every patriot has a more or less clearly defined ambition to hold public office?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "As a rule, patriots may be divided into two classes: the appointed and the disappointed."—Washington Star.

Bringing It Home

He was a kind and benevolent old gentleman, who took much interest in little boys.

One day he was walking along the street, he stopped and looked with compassionate sympathy at a lad whose face bore clear evidence of having been in the wars.

"My poor little fellow," he said, patting the boy on the head, "I fear you've been fighting. You've got a black eye. Dear me, now, I'm really sorry."

"Never you mind about me," said the poor little fellow. "You go home and be sorry for your own little boy. He's got two black eyes."

A country visitor to a big city contemplated with amazement the huge sign displayed over the entrance to an institute in a prominent thoroughfare: "Stammering Institute. Trial Lesson Free." "Upon my soul," exclaimed the rural traveller, "if that don't beat all! I knew they taught the dinkens wants to learn stammering!"

Lifebury Soap is delightfully refreshing for Bath or Toilet. For washing—underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

A young gentleman with a very plain face was rather annoyed at his view of the stage was obstructed by the hat of a pretty girl who was sitting in front of him in the gallery.

Wishing to get a glimpse of the performance, he plucked up courage and, in a nervous voice, exclaimed: "See here, miss, I want to look as well as you."

"Oh, do you?" she replied, in a rich Cockney accent, as she turned round and looked at him square in the eye. "Then you'd better turn home and change your face."

A party of recruits were taken to the shooting range for the first time. They were fired at a target 500 yards away, and not one hit it. They were then tried at a target 200 yards away, and not one hit it. They were then tried at a target 100 yards away, and not one hit it.

"Fix Bayonets! Charge! It's your only chance!"

The young American was stopped at the door of a fashionable church in London. "Are you related to the bride?" asked the sexton. "No, or groom?" asked the sexton. "No," said the young man. "Then what interest, may I ask, have you in a ceremony that is to be of the quietest character?" "I'm the defeated candidate," replied the young man.

The tramp rang the doctor's bell and asked the pretty young woman who opened the door if he would be so kind as to ask the doctor if he had a suit of old clothes he would kindly give away. "In the doctor," said the smiling young woman, and the tramp all but fainted.

Meaning of the Terms Folio, Quarto,
Octavo and Duodecimo.

"The words 'folio,' 'quarto,' 'octavo,' 'duodecimo' and the like have almost, if not quite, lost their original meaning. At first they had reference only to the number of leaves into which the sheets used in making the book were folded. Thus if these sheets were folded once the book was called a folio; if the sheets were folded twice, so as to form four leaves, the book was called a quarto; if they were folded four times, so as to form eight leaves, the book was called an octavo, and so on.

The duodecimo, or 12mo, is an irregular size. To make it the sheet must be folded so as to form twelve leaves. Fold one-third of the width of a sheet lengthwise on itself. Next fold the paper across its breadth in the center. Next fold the sheet across its length—that is, fold the two leaves on the four. Finally fold it again across and in such shape that it may easily be sewed in with others to form a book.

But though, strictly and historically, quarto, octavo, etc., have reference solely to the manner of folding the sheet, they are, as a matter of common practice, used to specify the sizes of books.

If the sheets on which books are printed were of uniform size a quarto page would be as unvarying an area as a square foot or an acre, and before the invention of machines for making paper there was such uniformity to be found in the sizes of sheets.

But when paper making machines were introduced and the use of molds was abandoned sheets came to be made of all dimensions. As a result, quartos and octavos had all sorts of dimensions, and the terms, when used strictly to indicate how the sheet was folded, became worthless as designations of size. The use of the old terms was nevertheless not abandoned, but instead they were first used to indicate a rather wide range of sizes and finally were attached to certain more definite sizes, without reference to the method of folding.

The practice of the publisher nowadays is first to determine what size of page he wants. The sheet he uses will be large or small, according to the capacity of the press at his disposal. On that sheet he may print, say, eight octavo pages, or he may print thirty-two, but he will call the book an octavo, though by its folding it should be called either a quarto or a folio.

In other words, the publisher calls his book by the name of that one of the old sizes to which it happens to come nearest.

The confusion resulting from the changes noticed here has not passed away yet, but efforts have been made to give definiteness to the old words.

Whistling on Sabbath in Scotland.
Concerning the Scottish reputation of whistling on the Sabbath David Ramsay has a characteristic story. A famous Glasgow artist met an old highland acquaintance unexpectedly.

"Donald, what brought you here?"
"Oo, weel, sir, it was a bad place you; they were bad folk, but they're a God fearn' set of folk here." "Weel, Donald, I'm glad to hear it." "Oo, aye, sir, deed are they, an' I'll gie ye an instance o't. Last Sabbath just as the lirk was skailin' there was a drover chieftain frae Dumfries comin' along the road whalin' an' lookin' as bappy as if it was in middle o' the week. Weel, sir, our lands is a God fearn' set of lads, an' they were just comin' out o' the lirk—oo they yeikit upon him an' 'almost killed him!"

That English Complexion.
The complexion of the English have often been exploited for our benefit. The damp climate and the exercise out of doors produce the red, they say. But on examination it proves to be not the red of the rose, but the red of raw beef, and often streaky and throaty at that. The features are large and the face high colored, but it is not a delicate pink. It is a coarse red, at a distance the effect is charming, bright, refreshing, but close to often rather unpleasant. Here the features of the women, even the features of the happy women, are molded, while the features of our beautiful American women are chiselled.—Scribner's.

Ferried.
"I kept my husband on a string for years before I consented to marry him."
"Why so long?"
"Well, you see, I waited until I could see his way clear financially"—Lippincott's.

COCHRANE.

Alex. McEwan sent two Massey-Harris binders out into the country from here last week. Go and have a look at the new style of buggy he has just got in, it is a great improvement on the old fashioned stage of body, and is more roomy.

There is no truth in the rumour that Bob is going out of the dry business in consequence of recent important events in his family. There is no silly pride about him, and he will continue to do the town's hauling at the old rates as if nothing had happened.

BOOMING NOVA SCOTIA.

Eastern Province Is Taking Steps To Secure Immigrants.

The Land of Evangeline, immortalized by Longfellow in "The Seaside," with its remarkable agricultural and pastoral resources, is, figuratively speaking, to be brought much nearer to the Mother Country. For many years the great tide of immigration has been pouring into Acadia, but now a portion of that stream is happily being diverted into the Maritime provinces.

The Government of Nova Scotia desires to attract settlers for her lands by the offer of the opportunity of the land within her bounds for all who are willing to work. A province rich in natural resources, fertile in soil, and rich in natural yield, healthful in climate, possessing good markets, and unsurpassed for its scenery, Nova Scotia does not hesitate to proclaim her advantages. Railways, radiating in all directions, and the facilities of modern civilization are readily to hand. Nova Scotia is on the pathway of the world's commerce, and inhabit the nearest of the Canadian provinces to Great Britain.

With the object of enlightening the people of the rural districts of the British Isles on the attractions and resources of the country, the Nova Scotia Government have despatched to London the Rev. Maclean Geddie, who is at present arranging a comprehensive series of illustrated lectures on the all-important subject of immigration. Mr. Geddie, it may be stated, has recently carried out a successful organization on behalf of the Church of England in Canada, and has had a large experience in dealing with immigrants. Outstanding features of his work have been the establishment of a system of training for the Church people to their destinations, thus keeping them in continuous touch with the Church; the creation of a labor bureau, which has enabled him successfully to place hundreds of young men as well as married men with families in suitable and satisfactory situations; and the perfecting of the port of Halifax as a system which tabulates all the lands available for settlement in Nova Scotia, which has proved of great assistance to those arriving in Nova Scotia, with a view to acquiring homesteads.

Sir Hugh and the Epidemic.

Years ago the energy and courage of Sir Hugh Graham, proprietor of The Montreal Star, played a leading part in saving Montreal from the worst disaster that has threatened her. This was in 1886, when small-pox seemed to hold the city hostage in its grasp. The city authorities were paralyzed and helpless. There was no adequate place in which to isolate the victims, many people refused to be vaccinated, and, in many cases, frightened relatives refused to let their sick be taken from their homes. Sir Hugh promptly organized a demonstration at the City Hall. A civic health committee—consisting of himself and six associates—was formed, and an army of vaccinators and sanitators was at once set to work. But a suitable place for isolation on a large scale was still lacking, and Sir Hugh, perceiving that the City Hall buildings were the only available structures, secured a requisition to call out the troops, and marched as they were to the Exhibition grounds. The gates were locked and barred against them; but Sir Hugh himself climbed the high fence, wrenched the fastenings from the gates, and admitted the troops. Within twenty-four hours the great building had become an isolation hospital, with a corps of nursing nuns in charge, and a procession of small-pox patients being carried into it.

A More Peaceful Ireland.

The Dublin Gazette contains a proclamation announcing that King's county has ceased to be disturbed, and ordering the discontinuance of the additional police force after a month. Similar proclamations have been issued in regard to counties Leitrim and Westmeath.

Cost of a Dreadnought.

In the building and completing of a Dreadnought, daily work is afforded for between 1,000 and 1,500 skilled men. Of the total cost of $3,750,000, some 70 per cent—$2,625,000—would go in wages.

NERVOUS DISORDERS

Promptly Cured by the Use of
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If your hand trembles or is unsteady, remember that this is a sure sign of a lack of your nervous system being at fault. The mischief may develop slowly to a worse stage. You feel uncomfortably weak and weary after exertion; you "lose flesh"; you turn against food and suffer palpitations and indigestion after eating. At times you are intensely irritable, greatly depressed and easily worried. Sometimes sharp pains shoot down your spine and legs and probably neuralgia robs you of your sleep at night. These are some of the troubles that indicate the presence of nervous disorders. If these troubles are neglected they result in complete nervous collapse and possibly paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won a great reputation by curing all forms of nervous disease. The nervous system depends entirely upon the blood supply for nourishment; when the blood is thin and weak the nerves are affected and so paralyzed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually increase the supply of good red blood, feed, strengthen and tone the nerves, enable them to perform their functions and dispel all signs of nervousness.

Mrs. Jas. H. Ward, Lord's Cove, N.B., says: "About two years ago I was laid up from nervous prostration that I was a little better than a helpless wreck. I suffered from headache, loss of sleep, and general dizziness. The least unusual move would startle me and set my heart beating. I was unable to do any work, and I was so weak that I was hardly able to drag myself about, and could not do my housework. In every way I was in a deplorable condition. As the medicine I had been taking seemed to do me no good, my husband got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had only been taking the Pills for a couple of weeks, when I seemed to feel somewhat better, and this encouraged me to continue the treatment. From that time my strength gradually but surely returned, and in the course of a few more weeks I was once more a well woman, able to do my own housework and feeling better than I had done for years. I owe my good health to the healing powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every other weak, sickly, worn out, nervous person should follow the example of Mrs. Ward and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. These Pills will send new blood coursing through your veins and bring brightness and energy to the weak and exhausted. They can be obtained from all druggists or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

As Bad as That!

TRAIL THAT GREW.

Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, is a Wonderful Thoroughfare.

One of the most remarkable highways of transportation in America is Jasper Avenue, the main street of Edmonton, writes Augustus Bridle, in The Toronto Globe. In twenty years that splendid display of a street following the kink of the river bank has seen three eras of traffic and more varieties of picnics than any other highway in Canada. The huskie dogs and toboggans went jingling in there from the farthest parts of the far lands long before the caravans of the Red River carts. The Kyeses of Indians and half-breeds came halter-skittering from the shacks and the tepees. Mounted Police filed among the stag leg shacks that hunched up on the edge of the old fort down on the flats. And the carts came; the drawn-out struggle of the creaking, honking, all-wood chariots that made the thousand of shacks in Fort Garry by the meandering black trail; and up from Calgary when the steel went through the shacks, the four-horse stage went sham-banging down the high south bank before there was ever a Strathcona—on to the old cable ferry, and crawling up the steep to the rooky hills that trail where the uncertain stages were just beginning to mark out the stent of the street. For the line of traffic reaching along and the lines of traffic were going deeper as the town grew and stood on the edge of the railway. Sometime somebody named that trail Jasper Avenue because the Jasper Road stood there at the time.

Where the carts halted in the creaking, caravanning cars. Up into that snarl of shacks with the trail snaking amidst came the ox-cart caravans of the priests, huddling along with goods for the trail. The carts of the St. Albert on the Sturgeon. It was with new and again a wagon, and then more wagons, rolling up from the south—the day the world's trail-riders into the outfit town. That was the day of the trails, and the world's trail-riders were riggered up to hit the long trail to the north. On that store-straggled, shack-lined old Jasper avenue went the bands of crawling oxen and the bales of hay; the barrel chariot that some foreman sent to cart out of three hogheads packed with grub, axled and planned and carried out on merry roll to the unknown with the camp and the grubstake within, till on a frozen snag the front barrel-wheel got a puncture, and the beam came drinking out. The lumbering contraption went rolling home, never to start again. Biggest of all the teams, the teams of the world's locomotive freaks ever seen on Jasper Avenue was the steam sleigh that some foreman sent to cart out of three hogheads packed with grub, axled and planned and carried out on merry roll to the unknown with the camp and the grubstake within, till on a frozen snag the front barrel-wheel got a puncture, and the beam came drinking out. The lumbering contraption went rolling home, never to start again. The lumbering contraption went rolling home, never to start again. Biggest of all the teams, the teams of the world's locomotive freaks ever seen on Jasper Avenue was the steam sleigh that some foreman sent to cart out of three hogheads packed with grub, axled and planned and carried out on merry roll to the unknown with the camp and the grubstake within, till on a frozen snag the front barrel-wheel got a puncture, and the beam came drinking out. RAW DRUGS.

Castor Oil Comes as Pretty Little Brown and Black Beans.

Upon going into a pharmacy and looking over the mysterious jars and bottles and boxes that line the shelves did you ever wonder where on earth all of the drugs came from and how they appeared before they were ground up and made into oils or dried or pulverized or crystallized into queer shaped lumps? Each jar and box seems to hide some secret which you immediately become curious to solve. How many different kinds do they represent? And, after they leave the jars that hold them now, what are they made into?

Who, for example, would connect a great pile of dry, thin twigs, neatly tied into small bundles, with saw-palmetto? These twigs are the creeping roots and rootlets of a prickly shrub that grows in Jamaica, and they are worth from 10 to 50 cents a pound. Somewhat similar in appearance is Ipecacuanha, which also comes to us in dry twigs, which are part of the trailing root of a plant found in the damp forests of Brazil.

These roots receive no preparation save drying before they are shipped off to the United States. They are packed in large sacks, and the workmen who open the bales must beware of breathing the pungent, irritating dust given off, which is productive of unpleasant results if incautiously inhaled.

Castor oil, too, is hard to recognize in the pretty little brown beans, spotted with black and with polished skins, that arrive in bags from India. They look far too attractive to suggest, the much hated dose of our early days.

Aloes, the base of many nauseous medicines, may be seen to its crude form as a solid mass resembling brown scum, packed in heavy wooden boxes, from which it is chipped out in flakes with a chisel and hammer. It is of different qualities and prices, according to whether it comes from Arabia, Socotra or the West Indies, and may bring any sum from $4 to $45 per hundredweight. Aloes is the juice of the big fleshy leaves of the plant of that name. This juice is pressed or evaporated from the leaves and poured into chests or kegs in a semifluid state, hardening presently into a solid block. Not infrequently it is included in the dry skins of monkeys and in this strange form brought to market.

One of the most interesting of drugs is opium, both on account of its awful potency and by reason of its great value. A case of opium, about 225 pounds, is worth $400 roughly. The case is of rough deal lined with tin and contains a number of soft, dark lumps, like large handfuls of dough packed very closely together in a quantity of dry, chaffy seeds.

The opium which reaches America is of two qualities, one for medicine, the other for smoking, and comes from Persia and Asia Minor, China and India.—St. Louis Republic.

MONEY OF THE RICH.

Of More Use Foolishly Spent Than Hoarded or Lying Idle.

A great reservoir of water undistributed leaves men and women to perish of thirst and growing crops to parch and die. So also vaults bulging with stagnant money leave men and women to perish in squalid poverty and ripened crops to rot within the fields and orchards that grew them. Therefore what happens to the dollars of the millionaire is a question of the first importance.

Those of us who believe in praying for material blessings will do well to pray long and earnestly that rich women will never cease to buy $100 hats and $1,000 gowns, with diamonds and other jewels to match; that they will continue to give balls and teas and entertainments of the most expensive kind; that they will be recklessly extravagant in gewgaws and futilities of every description, because it will be good for us who depend upon an income drawn from the multitude of operations involved in producing, merchandising and transporting all those gewgaws and other glitters that go to keep extravagance at a high pitch.

Let us hope that rich men's sons will continue to spend their fathers' money as foolishly as they are reputed to do—not because it will be good for them, but because it will be good to have the money poured into the wage earner's money channels.

Let us doubly hope that the rich men may be prospered in their money getting, because they will not let it lie idle. Whatever their wives and children do not spend they put into stocks and bonds and thereby turn it into the wage earner's money channels. Let us be thankful, too, that neither the dollars of the rich nor the dollars of the poor are of any value save as they go into the wage channels of active circulation.—F. W. Hewes in Harper's Weekly.

First Trousters.

The first trousers in their present shape were introduced into the British Isles in 1613 and tolerated as a legitimate portion of evening dress in 1614.

DOG POUND.

The land in the Dog Pound District is practically all taken up and one who remembers the country of a few years ago looks with wonder at the great change three or four years have wrought. Cattle have given place to grain growing, but strikes one most is that fully ninety per cent. of the settlers are running cattle, hogs, etc., with their grain growing—in fact it is quite the Alberta mixed farming district. Dairying is taken up earnestly. Mr. Boucher's store and cheese factory is more than proof of the dairying progress.

Most of the crops are cut and the expected yield will be enormous, one farmer, on 14-28-4 west of 5th, having a beautiful stand of many acres of oats which averages well over the six feet high mark.

Then again the public buildings are progressing numerically and shortly we hope to be advertising for tenders for the building of another school house, namely the Summit Hill school house, particulars of which will appear in this paper shortly. The debentures are out and those interested in securing them should communicate with the board immediately.

We are looking forward to securing the Government Telephone shortly as we notice it striding towards us in the Beaver Dam district. We are still clinging to the faint hope of securing the practical use of the Government Road now that we have digested the verbal use. We have seen it in theory and long for practice.

HIGH RIVER EXHIBITION

The establishment of an Annual Agricultural Exhibition at High River, and the making of the exhibition this year—the first year—such a great success as to cause success the following year, is the proposition undertaken by the citizens of the town and district of High River. The event will be under the management of the High River Agricultural Society, and the enthusiastic support which has already been tendered the management is a guarantee that the object of the society will be obtained. The exhibition this year will be held on October 19 and 20. Liberal prizes for live stock and farm produce, etc., and an attractive program of races and other attractions, will be offered. Prize lists and particulars in reference to the exhibition may be had on application to Harry Nelson, Secretary and Manager, Box 255, High River.

COCHRANE.

Arthur Hewitt, brother to John, James, Robert, Henry, and Annie, of that ilk arrived in town last week-end from Vancouver, B. C. on a visit to his kin here.

On Saturday night two more Hewitts arrived to stay with Bob Hewitt, but we have not yet ascertained their christian names. Papa and Mama are hereby tendered our congratulations.

If that infant settlement in the wilds of Ontario that has snarled the name of Cochrane, refuses to give way to our prior claim and call itself something else, it might be possible to change our own name and call ourselves Hewitttown or Hewittville or even simply Hewitt, as the family of that name is likely at its present rate of increase, to dominate the town in the near future.
